Staunton 351 Donates Safety Glasses to Area Schools

Staunton 351 has donated over 2,229 pairs of safety glasses to three different school systems this school year. They are used by Augusta County Schools, Staunton City Schools, and Valley Career and Technical Center in the various classes and shop courses where students must wear eye protection. Featured in the photo are some seventh graders performing a lab experiment at Shelburne Middle School in Staunton, Virginia. They are from left to right: Jamil Cruz Jr., Natasha Moore, Logan Smith, Alexis Toliver, Staunton 351 Safety Glasses Committee Chair Paul Hiveley, and Stephanie Haskins from the Staunton City School Board.
